Interested in participating in a research study of a new weight loss medication?

The CU Anschutz Health and Wellness Center is seeking volunteers for a new research study looking at a new investigational medication for weight loss. The medication is taken by injection once per week. The study will last approximately 18 months. Participants will receive study medication, study-related exams and lab work and meetings with a dietitian on healthy lifestyles at no cost. Participants may receive compensation for time and travel for study visits.
