

CCPM Trainee Membership - Guidelines (Eligibility, Expectations, Benefits)

The CCPM Trainee Membership program aims to provide a community for trainees who wish to engage with and advance joint efforts between UHealth and CCPM to implement personalized medicine to advance research and improve patient care. Numerous CCPM efforts have been, and will continue to be, shaped by individuals on campus who are connected to but not directly employed by CCPM. This program provides opportunities to engage directly with personalized medicine in unique ways.

		Trainee
Eligibility
Trainees in the CU AMC and hospital communities (CU-system, UHealth, CHCO, VA). Not faculty or staff.		X
At least one of the following: (1) Work directly or indirectly pertains to personalized medicine . (2) Is interested in advancing personalized medicine at CU.		X
Expectations
Be an advocate and champion for CCPM.		X
Attend CCPM seminar series when able.		X
Follow CCPM's media policy.		X
Present at a CCPM seminar series, as requested.		X
Serve on a working committee, as requested.
Benefits
Entrée to the CCPM Biobank community and related research activities; Gain an understanding of how to interact with the Biobank.		X
Networking with clinical and research faculty across all series who have a focus or interest in personalized medicine.		X
Invitation to the CCPM annual retreat		X
Subsidized participation in the CCPM annual retreat		X