

FRIDAY'S FEATURES

ISSUE 111822

Editor: Linda Niebauer

https://medschool.cuanschutz.edu/farleyhealthpolicycenter

NEWS, ANNOUNCEMENTS, CELEBRATIONS

Free Books from Previous Symposium Speakers contains a list of free books available to nonprofits from the Colorado Health Foundation. Supplies are limited so take a look.

UCCS Social Work Programs Fulfilling a Critical Need is a story on the University of Colorado site about how new bachelor's and master's of social work programs at the University of Colorado Springs are already fulfilling a critical need in El Paso County.

The hope generator is this week's newsletter from Ben Miller about why hope matters.

New behavioral health facility for Omaha children expected to open in 2025 is a 3 News Now story about how The Mental Health Innovation Foundation is managing the $89 million project geared toward the mental healthcare of teens and children.

Selena Gomez honored for mental health advocacy work is an AP News story by William J. Kole about how the Boston-based Ruderman Family Foundation honored the 30-year-old entertainer with its annual Morton E. Ruderman Award in Inclusion for "drawing inspiration from her personal journey: to help others worldwide get access to counseling and other services.

Colorado nonprofit provides free dental care for "instantimpact" in lives of low-

income students is a story in The Denver Post by Megan Ulu-Lani Boyanton about a nonprofit started to provide dental care to the families of railroad workers and coal miners and how it is continuing its more-than-a-century-old legacy by serving the Denver area's low-income children.

.

Fall viruses are hitting with a vengeance. Tips for a healthier holiday season. is a post in UCHealth Today by Katie Kerwin McCrimmon who writes about the surge of flu, RSV and COVID-19 infections as we approach the holidays.

.

Do you know the stages involved in recovery from substance use disorder? is a story on UCHealth Today by Susan Cunningham who talks to a licensed behavioral health counselor at UCHealth Behavioral Health Clinic in Steamboat Springs about recovery.

.

Bipolar Disorder Expert: Raw Look at Selena Gomez's Life Can Open Eyes is a post on the CU Anschutz Medical Campus site by Debra Melani in which Dr. Chris Schneck, CU Anschutz expert on bipolar disorder, offers a medically focused film review of a recently released documentary on a superstar's journey with mental health struggles: "Selena Gomez: My Mind & Me."

.

Expert Untangles Complexities of Grief for Suicide Loss Survivors is a story on the CU Anschutz Medical Campus site by Laura Kelley about how embracing community and staying connected is at the top of the strategy list for healing.

•

The Benefits of Mental Health Programs in Schools is a US News story by Kate Rix about how community partnerships can help K-12 schools provide more robust mental health support for students.

.

COVID Superspreader Events Still Exist. Here's What They Look Like Now. is a story on HuffPost by Julia Ries about how such events after large gatherings like concerts, weddings, and conferences are still a thing even though testing and contact tracing programs in 2022 have been defunded and scaled back.

Termites in the House of Health Care is an opinion piece on the Milbank Memorial Fund site by John E. McDonough about how private equity firms are devouring the woodwork and foundations of the US. health care system.

Colorado funds only one agency to help families and adopted kids with their trauma-filled past. And its budget just got slashed. is a story in The Colorado Sun by Olivia Prentzel and colleagues who write that "no family who has received trauma-informed coaching by the nonprofit, Raise the Future, has reported a disrupted adoption." Colorado is at risk for going from being a leader in this space to being unable to continue to offer this essential assistance.

Mental-Health Days Are Only a Band-Aid for Burnout is a story in The Atlantic by Jonathan Malesic that discusses how workers don't need a new type of sick day; they need sustainable jobs.

RESEARCH, DATA, EVALUATION

CU Researchers Rethink Mental Illness is a story in the Coloradan Alumni Magazine by Lisa Marshall who writes that the future for patients struggling with mental illness might include a brain scan to pinpoint regions that may be misfiring in addition to sharing their feelings with a therapist.

Therapists say they can't meet high demand as anxiety, depression higher is a post on The Washington Post by Teddy Amenabar about a survey by the American Psychological Association that found that 6 in 10 psychologists say they don't have openings for new patients.

Study finds 'huge' increase in children going to the emergency room with suicidal thoughts is a CNN story by Jen Christensen about the steady increase in the number of children who are seen in emergency rooms for suicidal thoughts.

How loneliness is killing men is a story on Science Focus by Ian Taylor about why friends are a kind of medicine.

The health benefits of a random act of kindness is a CNN story by Sandee LaMotte that discusses how putting the well-being of others before our own without expecting anything in return stimulates the reward centers of the brain, studies have shown.

MEDICAL-LEGAL PARTNERSHIPS

Episode 74: Health Justice after COVID is a podcast with Jeanne Hruska and Yael Cannon, professor of law at Georgetown Law, about health equity and justice, how they impact the conversation about being post-COVID, and the pivotal role that lawyers can play in achieving them.

Eugene S. Farley, Jr. Health Policy Center UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO ANSCHUTZ MEDICAL CAMPUS

SUBSCRIBE TO FRIDAY'S FEATURES

Unsubscribe robert.p.thompson@ucdenver.edu Update Profile |Constant Contact Data Notice Sent bylinda.niebauer@cuanschutz.edupowered by

