

Conversation Starters Cardiology: The practice routinely does stress testing for low risk patients. They express concerns about changing that practice because patients are reassured by them and insurance covers them. How might you approach this situation?	Conversation Starters An orthopedic surgeon is not at all interested in talking about overuse. He specializes in knee arthroscopy and considers his outcomes among the best in the area. How might you engage him? Tip: he owns the ultrasound equipment that screens for DVT after each procedure.
Conversation Starters A dermatologist has a brisk practice, much of which is self-pay so does not impact the overall system health care costs. He does not think overuse applies to him. How might you engage in a dialogue? Tip: one area of common overuse is antibiotics when not indicated.	Conversation Starters You are meeting with an ED charge nurse as the physicians have declined meeting with you. How would you handle this situation?
Conversation Starters Cardiology: The practice routinely does stress testing for low risk patients. They express concerns about changing that practice because patients are reassured by them and insurance covers them. How might you approach this situation?	Conversation Starters An orthopedic surgeon is not at all interested in talking about overuse. He specializes in knee arthroscopy and considers his outcomes among the best in the area. How might you engage him? Tip: he owns the ultrasound equipment that screens for DVT after each procedure.
Conversation Starters A dermatologist has a brisk practice, much of which is self-pay so does not impact the overall system health care costs. He does not think overuse applies to him. How might you engage in a dialogue? Tip: one area of common overuse is antibiotics when not indicated.	Conversation Starters You are meeting with an ED charge nurse as the physicians have declined meeting with you. How would you handle this situation?