Course Description
This program will provide attendees with the knowledge and skills to provide care for common injuries sustained by the rodeo athlete. It will cover acute care, late reconstruction and preventative methods to limit injury in the rodeo athlete. The meeting is intended for physicians, athletic trainers, and allied health personnel who participate in the medical care of the rodeo athlete in their local community, or provide medical coverage at local, regional and national rodeos. The meeting will have a special emphasis on case-based learning. Ample time for questions and discussion guided by experienced moderators is also provided.

Learning Objectives
This CME activity is designed to help the attendee reach a baseline knowledge level about a wide variety of injuries seen in the rodeo athlete. This will help the attendee develop treatment protocols and prevention strategies when caring for these athletes that is consistent with other providers participating in the care of the rodeo athlete. At the conclusion of this program, the participants should be able to:

1. Evaluate the Elbow and its surrounding tissue to identify various Elbow injuries and potential available treatment options.

2. Summarize the properties and therapeutic use of different types of athletic tape and their appropriate application in the rodeo athlete.

3. Develop a plan for application of cervical spine protection for the ambulatory injured athlete with neck pain.

4. Implement post concussive evaluation to determine ability to return to sport for the athlete who has sustained a concussion as part of their post concussive rehabilitation program.

5. Assess patients with hip pain and develop a differential diagnosis of common causes of hip pain in the rodeo athlete.
