The Rural Medicine Expert In Print!

Our own Mark Deutchman, MD, shares his experience and insights regarding the practice of rural medicine - particularly the growing shortage of practicing physicians in rural communities.

He is featured in the new book - Profiles of Rural Medical Educators. Congratulations, Mark!

Research and Innovation

Here are the newly funded projects for October:

- Moving AHEAD: Advocating for Health Equity through Arts and Dance
UCD PI: Shale Wong/Farley Center (Contact: Shale.Wong@cuanschutz.edu)
Sponsor: Colorado Health Foundation
- Socio-technical Design for Middleware Information Exchange Hub
UCD PI: Don Nease (Contact: Donald.Nease@cuanschutz.edu)
Sponsor: City of Longmont

Community

Longmont's City Council approved one year of funding for the Longmont Caring Community project, beginning November 1.

The support will advance the work with the City, Longmont community based organizations and Archethought, Inc., the technology partner.

Over the next year we will implement a communications hub for four City departments and one or more community based organizations that serve vulnerable residents of Longmont.

Diversity and Health Equity

Check out the new entry in the Disrupting The Status Quo Blog. Alicia Wong, MD, MPH, MA, addresses disability as a diversity issue in medical education.

Three New Websites!

Three new digital homes for Department of Family Medicine-affiliated ventures went live this week.

We invite you to check them out.
