Mentoring

Junior Faculty Mentor Program (JUMP)

Designed for junior faculty who are about to start or would like to become a first-time mentor. This program provides strategies and guidance to junior faculty and prepares them for the unique challenges they face when asked by students, residents, and fellows to assume a mentoring role. The program runs January-April. Faculty may self-nominate to the program.

Leadership

Mid-Career Faculty Women's Leadership Development Program

This is a unique program on campus for mid-career faculty and is complimentary to the School of Medicine's Women's Leadership Training. This 10-month program includes five ½ day workshops, bi-monthly lunch and learns and a 360-assessment debriefed with an executive coach with individual development planning. Programming provides generalized leadership skill development with a focus on barriers and biases women often face in leadership roles.
