

Pediatric Residents

Continuity Clinics

Course Description: This is a three-year experience for pediatric residents in which they participate as providers in a community pediatric practice. They spend a half-day per week in the community practice over their three years as residents. The objective is for the resident to learn how general pediatricians provide continuity of care in a practice setting. By taking care of their own panel of patients, residents will be exposed to the breadth of general pediatrics, health maintenance, acute illness care and long-term management of chronic illness.

Time Commitment: One afternoon per week (perhaps two afternoons per week in the second and third years).

Time of Year: Year-round.

Level of Trainee: One resident for all three years of their program.

Preceptors Needed: General pediatricians in the Denver metropolitan area.

Additional Information: Preceptors may share residents with their physician partners.

Contact: Julia Hudnut-Tanabe, MD; Julia.hudnut-tanabe@childrenscolorado.org

Rural Elective for Residents

Course Description: This elective gives second- or third-year residents an opportunity to learn about rural practice.

Time Commitment: One month.

Time of Year: July through May.

Level of Trainee: Second- or third-year residents.

Preceptors Needed: General pediatricians in a rural practice in Colorado. Preceptors must be members of the Clinical Faculty of the Department of Pediatrics.

Contact: Julia Hudnut-Tanabe, MD; Julia.hudnut-tanabe@childrenscolorado.org